President Donald Trump waves to the audience after speaking at the Faith and Freedom Coalition's 'Road to Majority' conference on Thursday. | Zach Gibson/Getty Images Republican groups scramble to protect Trump Organization from Cohen President Donald Trump's personal attorney, Michael Cohen, continued to weigh in on his former boss' 2020 campaign — including in ways that could be viewed as potentially damaging to the Republican National Committee. Cohen and the RNC sought to walk back a controversy over an event at which Cohen spoke in Dallas on Friday, and POLITICO has learned that three groups with close ties to the White House and RNC are eyeing the situation for a possible PR move. Trump spoke at the "Road to Majority" event in late January, where Cohen was among the hundreds of people in attendance. An audience member recorded a portion of Cohen's speech and posted the audio to Twitter. Cohen, who returned to prison after being convicted of bank fraud and campaign finance violations, was barely audible to a crowd in Dallas on Friday, though he was speaking in measured tones. "If someone, maybe a billionaire, wants to take a set of handcuffs
